Ujjain, Khargone, Jabalpur in spotlight after spike in cases

Dr Mahavir Khandelwal, pulmonologist and one of the doctors treating Covid-19 patients, said he had come across unusual symptoms in patients. “We have come across patients who did not have fever, cough, or respiratory discomfort. They displayed other symptoms such as lung pain, severe headache, nausea and vomiting, and in some cases, hallucinations,” said Khandelwal.

The increase in the number of Covid-19 cases has worried health officials who believe that the situation will worsen in the coming days.

“Ujjain has become a hotspot and increasing numbers are affecting the city. The localities of the city and they were able to quarantine those who were returning from other areas. Jabalpur has also reported a rise in cases and we have implemented strict measures to control the spread of the virus,” said Dr Rajpal Bhaintwall, the municipal corporation’s assistant medical officer.

Through contact tracing, individuals from Ujjain, Khargone, and Jabalpur have emerged as Covid-19 carriers.

Cases spike in West Bengal, docs say testing rate too low

The test rate is still too low. By the state's population and national testing average, Bengal needs to conduct 40,000 tests a day on average.

Amid the pandemic, the West Bengal government has been criticized for its slow testing rate, which is well below the national average. Despite having a large population, the state has been unable to conduct enough tests to accurately track the spread of the virus. This has led to concerns about the reliability of the data being reported and the effectiveness of the state's response.

While the overall number of cases remains high, the testing rate is a crucial factor in determining how well the state is managing the outbreak. With the number of new cases continuing to increase, there is a growing need for more rapid and widespread testing to help identify and isolate infections early. The state government must take urgent action to address this issue and increase the testing capacity to prevent further spread of the virus.
India must stick to its strategic orientation

Post the pandemic, New Delhi should engage with all powers and resist calls to ally with the US against China

The lockdown will end soon, but refinance states urgently

The rapid decision to impose lockdowns across the country has undoubtedly saved the world from a catastrophic outcome of the virus. But refinance is soon on the agenda. The government needs to work hard to ensure the lockdown becomes a success.

India’s future strategy

The problem seems to be a lack of leadership. In India, Kerala successfully defended its position. Where China overtakes the US to become the world’s number one economy, India is no exception and managing the post-Covid-19 scenario needs the right kind of leadership. The lockdown may not be over, but the government and the people need to be prepared.

RSS must now heed its own chief’s advice

Mohan Bhagwat is right. Don’t demonise a community for the mistakes of a few. Don’t have a soft approach towards those who have transgressed. In India, the RSS is the main opposition. The RSS-managed media is not only side by side but actively involved in spreading misinformation. The RSS-managed media is not only side by side but actively involved in spreading misinformation. The RSS-managed media is not only side by side but actively involved in spreading misinformation.

Facebook and Google have reaped the benefits of being publishers without being responsible

Social media posts to show us among the billions of possibilities — then let us treat them as such. This is a peculiar mix of both tremendous power and immense responsibility. They have, until now, been regarded as open platforms, which allow any and all to express themselves. There can be no doubt the Internet firms will reap the benefits of free speech leniency. A black swan event is a catastrophe of such magnitude that it is almost impossible to comprehend it in the first place. Black swan events have a profound impact on the economy.

The coronavirus pandemic is that black swan event. If there is a single event that has changed the world, the coronavirus pandemic is it. The pandemic has changed the way we live, work, and think. It has also changed the way we do business. It has also changed the way we do business. It has also changed the way we do business. It has also changed the way we do business. It has also changed the way we do business.

India third biggest spender on military: Report

India is the world's third biggest military spender and the biggest among emerging economies, according to a report by the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute (SIPRI) in a copublication with the Centre for Military Analysis (CMA). The report finds that India has been the first time India and China have overtaken the US and Saudi Arabia among military spenders.

According to the report, global military spending increased by 2.6% in real terms in 2019, driven by a 7.1% increase for the US and a 6.9% increase in China. India's military spending rose by 6.6% in real terms to reach $66.6 billion in 2019, making it the third highest defence spender in the world.

India's military expenditure is the highest among emerging economies, and it has moved up from fourth to third rank among the top 10 military spenders globally. India's military spending accounts for 2.5% of its GDP, making it the fourth highest among the top 10 spenders.

Migrants from poor and marginalized groups, especially those from the Northeast and small states, have been most vulnerable to the economic impact of the lockdown. "I was in the streets of Delhi since April 15," said Ali, 28, a migrant worker from Assam. "I still remember the fear of the unknown."

People aged 60 and above, especially those who are chronically ill, are also at higher risk. "I was in the hospital for two weeks," said Rakesh, 50, from West Bengal. "I had a high fever and cough, but nobody could help me."

The lockdown has also had a severe impact on mental health. "I was always anxious," said Aparna, 30, from Maharashtra. "I couldn’t connect with anyone and felt lonely."

In addition to the physical and economic toll, the lockdown has also had a psychological impact. "I was feeling very isolated," said Arun, 27, from Gujarat. "I missed my friends and family."

Despite the challenges, there have been some positive outcomes. "I learned how to cook," said Priya, 21, from Rajasthan. "I also started reading more."

The lockdown has also led to a surge in digital and e-commerce platforms. "I used to buy groceries online," said Rohit, 35, from Delhi. "It was much easier and safer."

The lockdown has also had an impact on the environment. "There were fewer traffic jams and air pollution," said Meera, 40, from Mumbai. "The parks were much cleaner."
